IRISH HOME RULE.

Gladstone's Promises to Modify the Cause of Discord

And Immediately Receives Pledges of Powerful Support.

Majority on the Second Reading of the bill Assured.

Home Rule Agitation

LONDON, May 27.—The general liberal meeting called by Gladstone assembled at the foreign office this afternoon. The meeting was well attended by the premier's supporters, but none of the known Hartington or Chamberlain men were present. Gladstone was cheered when he entered. He at once opened the business on hand and announced that the government had decided to modify clause No. 9 of the home rule bill excluding Irish members from Westminster. He did not state what the nature of the promised modification was to be, but did state that the government had decided to modify the clause, provided the bill passed its second reading and was referred to a select committee for action during the autumn session of parliament. Gladstone declared he would at the autumn session of parliament introduce an amendment to the Irish home rule bill.

A number of liberal dissentients who did not agree to risk compromising their cause by attending the meeting, have issued a circular expressing satisfaction with the ability to effect an opportune conciliation adopted by the premier. They now openly proclaim their intention to return to their party allegiance and vote with the government for the second reading. Among the first to announce their return were John Fletcher Moulton, radical member for Clapham and Samuel Whitbread, liberal member for Bedford. Both were clients of Hartington. Letters to-day from retiring both have strongly commended themselves as supporters of Gladstone. Whitbread's accession is perhaps the most influential that the premier could have desired. He is the gentleman referred to as a wise counsellor by Gladstone in his great speech introducing the home rule bill on the 8th of April, and by reason of his high character and broad judgment has been the most conspicuous leader of Chamberlain's party. Besides the above named and other of dissidents have openly proclaimed themselves satisfied with Gladstone's present attitude and the concession he has promised to make and declared their intention to vote for the second reading. The general opinion this afternoon is that home rule will now certainly pass its second reading.

LONDON, May 27.—Two hundred and fifty members of parliament attended the meeting of liberals to-day. Mr. Gladstone was very vigorous and animated in his address. He said that no honor would be compromised by the support of the home rule bill by declining without protest or objection to what he had to say in favor of the measure, because he desired the fullest freedom to prevail in the liberal party in regard to it. Lord Salisbury's recent speech in which he said the Irish policy of England in Ireland was to be governed by the condition of the controversy because he was the official spokesman of the opposition. The Irish policy of the government is opposition being therefore recognized the importance of settling the Irish question was now intensified. It had been proposed to settle the matter by the adoption of a final strict resolution affirming the principle of home rule for Ireland, but Mr. Gladstone thought the course proposed by the government would answer better. An endeavor had been made to emasculate the principle of a separate Ireland and convert the bill into a delusion and a snare.

Mr. Gladstone warmly complimented Lord Hartington, who he said, possessed integrity and manliness. The premier, however, in his speech made any allusion to Mr. Chamberlain concerning the matter of coercion. Mr. Gladstone said the government was willing to submit it to parliament whether Irish representatives to be invited to attend the imperial parliament when questions of taxation affecting Ireland were up for consideration.

Mr. Chamberlain and his followers will hold another meeting to-morrow to decide upon their attitude with reference to the proposed modification of the home rule bill.

Queen Victoria Leaves for Balmoral

LONDON, May 27.—The queen traveled only out the right and reached Perth this afternoon, where she had breakfast. She after wards proceeded on her journey to Balmoral. Her majesty was loudly cheered by the people of Perth.

The queen will return to Windsor the third week in June. Gladstone's respectful suggestion to her majesty to remain at Windsor until after division on the home rule bill had no effect and her refusal to remain has caused a bad impression throughout the country.

The Maxwell Trial

SPRINGFIELD, May 26.—In the Pfeiffer murder case today Maxwell declared that the statement of Dr. Mary Mitchell was false in every particular. Mitchell testified that Maxwell had written her a letter stating that he was the man who had murdered Pfeiffer. Mitchell was then asked if she had written the letter and she replied that she had written it at the request of Maxwell, who had told her that he was in danger of being arrested for the murder of Pfeiffer and that he had written a letter to his father and mother and wanted her to send it to them. She had written it at his request. Mitchell testified that Maxwell had told her that he had administered chloroform to Pfeiffer before he came to this country. His admission was shown to have had the effect of the letter of Mitchell. Maxwell had written to Pfeiffer on board the steamer after leaving Liverpool. But that was not his name. He assumed the name almost immediately after leaving Hyde Park. He never told his true name. He told his father and mother that he was going to America and to keep it a secret. He had come to America to escape his creditors. He had studied medicine, physiology, anatomy, chemistry and medical jurisprudence when he was about 17 years of age and attended lectures and clinics in the hospitals for two years. He had studied the branches of science privately.

Another feature of Maxwell's testimony today were admissions that his statement in a letter to Pfeiffer stating he had a medical degree was false. His contradiction of a former statement that he was the cousin of Antonio Pfeiffer, the inventor of a method of administering chloroform by ferrules, came to this country. His admission was shown to have had the effect of the letter of Mitchell. Maxwell had written to Pfeiffer that he was simply to keep himself in the background. He admitted that he had made false statements and contradictions.

The Post-Dispatch this evening says that upon examination of Pfeiffer's trunks which were examined for that purpose, three doctors will testify that the presence of no such drugs was evidenced as that Maxwell claimed he had.

The Bearsets

NEW YORK, May 27.—Money on call easy at 1 percent; prime mercantile paper 4 to 6; sterling exchange steady, actual rates 4 87 sixty days, 4 88 demand; government bonds quiet, steady. It does not seem to matter to the bears selling stocks that the news continues uniformly favorable. Evidence that they are covering was conspicuous this afternoon, especially in St. Paul, Lake Erie and L. & N. There was great activity in stocks in the early hours of the session, yield of a slight fractional character, but before noon sellers offered to be taken and buying began again. The market rose and quickly prices advanced steadily to the close, the following being the best figures of the day:

K. of L. Convention

CLEVELAND, May 27.—In the general assembly of Knights of Labor at its session today the committee of laws presented a partial report embodying a number of propositions only one of which was taken up the first proposition which was to direct that the executive board should be increased from 5 to 11 members. A committee of 11 is then was taken until to-morrow at which time the committee on state of the order are expected to report.

To-night it is said Powderly's plan for the future government of the order is to establish a state assembly. There will then be four assemblies. Local assemblies will be subordinate to districts, districts to state and state to national. The plan is reported to be very popular among those of the delegates who have heard of it. It will do away with many unnecessary strikes. It provides among other things that no assembly but a state and national shall have power to order strikes. If a local assembly wants to order a strike it must first get the consent of the district and then of the state assembly.

Business in the Senate

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Republican senators held an order of business caucus this morning but it accomplished little besides declaring to take up at once the bill to forfeit the Northern Pacific land grant from Wadena to Portland and to refer the house arbitration bill to a special committee of which General Logan is chairman. The former action was taken in spite of the protest of members of the committee on education of labor. The caucus committee was taken to task for having fixed the order of business three or four weeks ago without inviting senators who are not members of the committee referred to to be present. Senator Platt was asked to be present but in fact it is held not session. He did not assent to this, but no positive understanding was reached on the subject.

Cerveza's Downfall

LONDON, May 27.—A letter received here from Don Nicolas Avila from Guaymas, Mexico, says Burkowes will be published the details of the battle of Vacachie fought recently for the suppression of the Yaquis. After three days defeation of the Yaquis succeeded to the parade shifting the Indian succumbed to the united arms of the state and militia. Already several chiefs and their followers have surrendered. Cabeno up to this date has not been found. It is believed he was wounded and is secreted in his fastness.

Another Bribery Case

NEW YORK, May 27.—Inspector Byrnes and District Attorney Martine up to 1 o'clock preserved the utmost reticence as to the identity of the mysterious man taken to the police headquarters last night and consigned to the "Alderman's pen." Here Alderman Mike Dady came to the general sessions court and said bail in the amount of $2,000 to answer a charge of bribery in connection with the franchise of the Forty fourth Street Crosstown railroad.

Sutherland's position in the house [illegible] after the debate had called [illegible] Norquay's claim contemptible bluff. The bulky premier promptly hit his assailant and a fight followed. Much the combatants were soon [illegible].

Forfeiture of Railroad Land Grants in the Senate

Logan Delivers a Eulogy on His Late Colleague

Frye's Amendment to the Ship Bill Accepted by the House

NORTH'S CONTESTS

WASHINGTON, May 27.—A resolution was offered by Wilson which was referred to over one day, providing for investigation of the evidence of appointment taken in Dakota by the committee of elections. The preamble to the resolution recites that the matter of such appointments stated to have been done or permitted to be done in disregard of law and right and the proper rights of citizens.

On motion of Dolph the bill to quiet title to certain lands in the United States and to the lands granted to the Northern Pacific company.

Van Wyck offered the bill providing for the forfeiture of a portion of the original grant over which the Northern Pacific railroad did not and now contemplate building. The bill (Van Wyck's) compelled Dolph's bill as it stood there were lands along other unfinished portions of the road and some along portions which had been finished which should be included. The bill as it stood, he said, if passed would be legislative declaration that the matter of forfeiture had been passed on by courts and that no other forfeiture proceedings could be taken. He moved an amendment to the committee's bill which would not only provide forfeiture of all Northern Pacific railroad grants except lands for which lines were completed before July 4th, '76 and except lands of way.

Call said the committee bill was really a proposition to confirm and not forfeit a grant of some 45,000,000 acres of land to the Northern Pacific railroad company. It was equivalent to a gift by congress of two or three hundred thousand dollars to a few individuals. He protested against it.

Edmunds expressed regret that Van Wyck had moved his amendment at this time, as the bill as it stood, he said, forfeited certain lands to which there would be no difference of opinion in congress, while the amendment of the senator from Nebraska involved the forfeiture of some lands as to which there was and would be great difference of opinion on the point whether congress had the right to forfeit. The question of forfeiting lands attaching to any portion of the now completed line on the ground that the line had not been completed in the time limited by the granting act was a mooted and disputed question, both as to the right of congress in the premises under the direction of the supreme court and to the morality and justice of the forfeiture.

Cockrell would go as far any one in the matter of forfeiting unearned railroad land but there was such a thing as deal according to knowledge and deal that defeated its object. Forfeiture bills had been so much complicated in congress that very few of them had been able to get through. He was therefore in favor of keeping such bills continued as far as possible to such provisions of forfeiture as would be sure to meet with support in congress and become law.

Beck offered an amendment providing that the passage of the committee bill should not be taken as a waiver by congress of the right to forfeit any unearned land of the same company hereafter if congress should see proper to forfeit such lands. The amendment was agreed to.

Van Wyck withdrew his amendment offered instead of the one providing for the forfeiture of such portions of land as were coterminous with the part of the main line and branches not completed at the time of the passage of this act.

Edmunds in order that the company was now building its main branch which was not finished.

Dolph explained the important and far reaching move of the British government to the development of commerce on the Pacific. He also explained the efforts of the Northern Pacific road to connect the northwest with the Pacific coast. He did not think congress could in the light of such steps proposed to stop in and stop the building of any railway line that would interfere with the growth of our commerce on the Pacific.

Mr. Dolph thought the bill did not sufficiently protect the Canadians. He did not think title to the land had been earned.

Mitchell differed with him as to the provisions for the protection of settlers. The object of the provisions criticised he said was to protect settlers.

Mr. Dolph said it was a matter of opinion. There was a prevalent opinion, he said, that this great government legislated in the interest of these great corporations at the sacrifice of the poor and the others. He would never vote for a bill to continue a grant of land that did not protect the interests of settlers.

The hour of 5 o'clock arriving the bill was laid over.

Mr. Miller submitted a conference report on the bill "Abolishing certain fees," etc., in connection with American shipping. (This is the bill containing the Frye amendment authorizing the president to deny by proclamation to vessels of foreign countries such privileges as are denied to American vessels in such foreign countries). The report was concurred in.

Mr. Miller explained that the bill as agreed in conference was substantially as it was passed by the senate.

Mr. Stanford introduced the resolutions introduced by him expressing the sorrow of the senate at the death of the late Senator John F. Miller of California.

The resolutions having been read Mr. Stanford addressed the senate in feeling terms of the life of the late Mr. Miller from Indiana, [illegible] his early days of his career as a student, lawyer, citizen soldier and citizen. Referring to his connection with the war Mr. Stanford said "Mr. Miller was one of the first to respond in behalf of the union at the breaking out of the rebellion. Governor Morton, the great war governor of Indiana, appointed him colonel of the twenty ninth Indiana infantry and he resigned his seat in the legislature to take command. Few men were better adapted for soldiers than John F. Miller. He had a cool head, great personal bravery, indomitable energy. The close of the war found him a brigadier and brevet major general. On his return to Indiana Governor Morton presented him with a sword which he had presented to the soldiers of the state who distinguished themselves and reflected great credit on his state." In the course of his concluding remarks Stanford said: "General Miller's life was a succession of work. He undertook his old well whether in command, counsel or in commerce. He gained commendation on every side and in every path of duty in which he engaged. His personal qualities were remarkable for their amiability. He was a true friend and a warm friend in politics. He was a republican and a republican and never got in the way of his friends. He believed that [illegible] country best [illegible] party."

[illegible] Frye offered an amendment to the bill to the effect that the provisions of the act should be suspended in regard to the ships, bills.

[illegible] Frye said he was willing to accept the amendment if it should be made to the proviso of the act of 1884 so that the provisions of the act should be suspended in regard to the ships, bills.

[illegible] Dolph of Maine from the committee on commerce reported back the house bill to prevent the shipping, bills.

[illegible] Frye said that the report should be taken and the provisions of the act of 1884 should be suspended in regard to the ships, bills.

[illegible] Frye said that the report should be taken and the provisions of the act of 1884 should be suspended in regard to the ships, bills.

The effort in the house yesterday to reduce the special tax on manufacturers of oleomargarine was defeated by a large majority. This may not mean that the product will be taxed, but it shows our legislators are not prejudiced in favor of bogus butter.

Jobbery and public thievery are becoming unfashionable again in New York. The district-attorney, without waiting to finish up the aldermen implicated in the Broadway Railroad bribery case has begun on another crooked franchise, and already has an alderman under bonds.

Most, the rabid leader of the anarchists, is on trial at New York for misdemeanor. It is to be hoped that the punishment for his offense is commensurate with the mischief he has worked in this country. It rests with the jury to give him his just deserts and set an example for this troublesome element.

Gladstone's concession to the dissenting members of his party insures the second reading of the bill. The majority will be, according to the best authority, over forty. He has promised to modify clause 24, the rock upon which the party split. This is the clause providing that Ireland shall have no representation at Westminster. The premier's action shows that he is in earnest in his effort to better the political position of Ireland. He will do the best he can rather than imperil the passage of his original measure.

Congress has approved the principle of retaliatory legislation in accepting Kerse's amendment to the shipping bill. This provision gives the president power to withhold from the vessels of a foreign country privileges which are denied our vessels by that country. Although no allusion is made to the fishery question in the amendment, it has been advocated by members who claimed that such a law should be in force to cover cases similar to the trouble with Canada. Retaliation would show that the government felt strongly the action of the Canadian authorities but it would be a poor prelude to an advantageous treaty, which is necessary to the restoration of privileges long enjoyed by our fishermen, and the relief of a great industry, now suffering from the withdrawal of those privileges. If our vessels have been unlawfully seized there is a redress which may be demanded by the government.

The Boston Commercial Bulletin has been making inquiries among the architects of that city, and finds that the May strikes have had the effect of suspending investments aggregating $4,000,000. It is believed that the present would have been the greatest building year since 1874 or the year following the great fire, but the uncertainty caused by the labor agitation has caused capitalists to postpone action. The Bulletin further says that about 40 per cent of the work offered the architects during the past week is now hung up in their offices. The collapse of the strikes will cause some of this to be proceeded with, but the more extensive building plans will be postponed until next year, for the reason that they could not now be advanced far enough to get the lathing and plastering done before the winter. These are some of the inevitable consequences of strikes which the men who undertake them never appear to take into consideration beforehand, though they themselves are always the chief sufferers from the withdrawal of capital and the suspension of improvement.

Spring Poetry

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO., May —

To the Editor of the Gazette:

Mr. Miller's poem which you publish to-day is so remarkable that I hope he will be induced to continue his efforts—if indeed it is an effort for him to produce such joyous rhymes. It is rare to find a poem which is at once so spontaneous and so correct, so unfettered and yet so free. The grammar, sense, rhyme and rhythm are all wonderful and striking in their way, and contribute to the singular interest which these verses have aroused in our village. I have heard many people express a desire to obtain extra copies of your last issue solely for the pleasure their friends will receive who may read these lines by the moist Atlantic shore or among the green and verdant foliage of boskey woods, or near a damp meadow in the country, or (possibly) a considerable distance up some mountain. I think, sir, if your readers could depend on getting a fresh poem by Mr. Miller, in every issue, you would soon extend the circulation of your noble paper far beyond the horizon of Colorado Springs. I know about these things for I am myself a poet, and when I grow older I expect to improve very much. JUVENIS.

One of Holman Hunt's Pictures

Blackwood's Magazine

Holman Hunt's journey to Palestine was taken with the purpose of painting the binding of the Saviour in the temple. But an unexpected difficulty came in the way. It was reported that the artist had come to treat the with the souls of the faithful, the superstition of the people against sitting to be painted could not be overcome—indeed an interdict was issued. And not until the recommendation of the models at Jerusalem was secured could the painter proceed. Mr. Hunt by this time was no stranger in the city, he had been a frequent visitor to the Jewish synagogue and through intrigue became a welcome guest in wealthy household. Taking advantage of these opportunities he selected types superior to the common heads in western Europe, as may be judged from the finished picture. Thus by slow degrees the important group of Jewish rabbis advanced to completion. Serious difficulties however precluded the introduction of the Virgin and the Savior upon canvas, the Jews who sat would take offense were the subject thus pronounced Christian. Hence nothing more was practicable then on the spot than studies and observations. After a sojourn of a year and a half in Jerusalem Mr. Hunt returned with his half finished picture to England and patiently continued his labors till their happy consummation in 1860. His method in London was like that in the East, he spared no pains to transcribe with fidelity the lineaments of the Semitic race. Through Baron Rothschild he obtained access to the Jewish school in Spitalfields, and selected models suited to his more youthful characters. The principal group, including Christ and the Mother like Leonardo's chief head in the supper was left till near the last. The information from Jerusalem were little more than suggestive—suitable types had to be searched out, and ultimately we learn that "the head of the Virgin was derived from a lady of the ancient race, distinguished alike for her amiability and beauty. The Savior was painted from a pupil in one of the Jewish schools, to which the husband of this lady furnished a friendly introduction." The accessories it will be remembered, are elaborated with infinite care. The costumes had been taken from the best available relics, and for the architecture of this the second temple, were consulted Jewish records and Assyrian and Egyptian remains. Thus is claimed to the painter's credit—a somewhat equivocal compliment it might seem—that he succeeded in constructing "a wholly new style of architecture."

Japanese Typesetters

Printers Circular

Halting our kuramas at the door of the Tokio Nichi Nichi Shinbun (Twice Daily News) we went in. But the feature of the Shinbun office was the type case, for there was only one of body type. And such a type case! Ghost of Benjamin Franklin, what a case! Suppose we measure it. It is divided for utility into two sections sloping toward an alley five feet wide. Each section is four feet wide by thirty feet long, four by sixty feet. There is a new case for you. This is divided into small compartments or boxes, into which the type is laid in regular piles, several piles in a box, with faces all toward the compositor—mostly boxes, big and little. Each holds a wooden stick with brass rule. The types are all of a size, the stick is not set to the measure of the column, which is about twenty ems pica, but to about half the measure, it being the business of the other workmen to impose the lines in columns, take proof and make up forms.

Now, then the type setting. Armed with sticks and rules and copy, the dozen compositors tread the last in an army. Here, this way each rushing to some box far or near for the needed letter—then back ten or twelve feet to the second case—all are on the lively move—rushing and skipping to and fro, right and left, up and down chase, balance to partner, swing the corner and back, shaking the copy, catching one letter here another there, prancing and dodging, running and skipping—a promenade cotillion, Virginia reel and all hands round on the same floor at the same time and the same dancers in each—a perfect maze of motion and confusion—yet out of confusion bringing printed order. It was a sight to be seen.

How many different characters are there in this case, anyhow? We asked our guide. Then our guide asked the printers, and none could answer better than to say. Nobody knows, sir, nobody knows—many thousand! Later on we repeated the same question to a more intelligent person who said: "At least fifty thousand!" That will account for the remarkable size of the case and the racing to and fro of the compositors. Just why they lunge in their copy all the while was not made so clear, other than the remark that it was the custom.

Spurgeon and Gladstone

LONDON, May —Rev. Spurgeon published an attack on Gladstone's home rule bill. The preacher asks, "What is Ulster done to be cast off?" and adds: "The whole scheme is full of dangers and absurdities is if conceived by a madman yet I am sure Gladstone believes he is only doing justice and a little for the good of all. I consider he is making one of those mistakes only made by great and well meaning men."

R. D. McLeod will leave next week for Leadville where he expects to run an engine.

There will be a meeting of the trustees on Tuesday to consider the applications for offices and certificates.

Prof. S. H. Stone will shortly leave for Mexico to complete his field work on the Government Geological survey.

Bert Campbell will spend some time in Manitou Springs hoping by the use of the mineral water to benefit his health.

Judge Severy is in Leadville presenting the claims of the college to the Arkansas Valley Association of Congregational churches.

Copies of the new catalogue of Colorado college will be distributed at the opera house Wednesday evening and can be had by applying to Prof. Wm. Strieby.

Prof. G. N. Marden, who for the past year and a half has been canvassing the east in behalf of the college treasury, has been so successful that the college is almost entirely out of debt.

The Phœnix Literary society will give a banquet at the college on Thursday evening, June 1, which will be participated in by the members of the society and large number of invited guests.

Although the arrangement committee for the Phœnix supper are performing their work with great secrecy, some rumors of cold tea have leaked out. A song entitled "Only three Grains of Corn" has been suggested.

Mr. E. D. Perkins, who studied assaying in the college last year, has charge of a very successful mine in Pinos Altos, Grant county, N.M. He is also running a mill and has the reputation of being a very reliable assayer.

E. A. Rider expects to go south next week.

The Shakesperian burlesque to be given by four young ladies at the Phœnix entertainment on Monday evening has received very careful preparation and will be one of the most enjoyable exercises of the evening.

A number of the students under the escort of Professors Stone and Wickard visited the Manitou Grand Caverns last Saturday, by the invitation of Mr. George Snider. After exploring the many wonders of this beautiful cave, and listening to learned treatises by Prof. Stone the party picnicked in the pass and returned home by the Garden of the Gods.

The commencement exercises will be held in the opera house on Wednesday, June 2, at 7:30 p. m. These will include orations by the two classical graduates, an address by an eminent Denver attorney, and statements of the financial condition and prospects of the college. The arrangements for the programme are not completed, but the latest draft is as follows:

Music.
Invocation.
Music ..... Miss Acker Caldwell
Oration ..... Prof W. Manning
Music.
Academic Address ..... Hon. Edward O. Wolcott
Music.

On the same evening a reception will be given the graduating class by the faculty for the students and a few of their friends.

COMMENCEMENT WEEK.

The first of the commencement week exercises is the baccalaureate sermon, which will be delivered Sunday, May 30th, by Prof. Geo. N. Marden. Mr. Marden will arrive from the east this morning, when the hour and place will be decided upon.

The annual exhibition of the Phœnix Literary society will take place on Monday evening at the college chapel. The following excellent programme will be presented:

"Humpty-Dumpty."

Speaking of Tony Denier's "Humpty-Dumpty" company which will appear at the opera house Monday evening the Denver Evening News has the following to say: Denier's "Humpty-Dumpty" is the same inoffensive, clever performance as in the good old days of old, when it was fresher and younger before the public. It has been "on the wall" for a good many days, but it has not yet gotten "its fall." The initial performance of the engagement drew an excellent house last evening, of all ages, from the young children to the "bald headed" veteran. The little ones were astounded, the youth delighted and the adults were entertained. Ravel's clown is a splendid make up and his pantomimics are most expressive. Miss Ravel, as Columbine, is fairly pretty and quite active. Lombardi, as Harlequin, was quite as active while his brother's Pantaloon was fine and he proved a strong support to Ravel. The novelty performances were strong, especially that of the Cressettes, family, whose musical specialties. The horizontal bar work was excellent and a wonder to lovers of this kind of performance over is. Rosillio's sword swallowing was clever, while D'Morado proved one of the most skillful of jugglers. Miss Holloway sang well and made a pleasant impression as a soubrette."

We stated in yesterday's GAZETTE that Messrs. McMillan & Kirkpatrick would open the Delmonico restaurant with a complimentary supper to the fire department in recognition of the efforts they put forth in saving Mr. McMillan's building from destruction some years ago. This supper will be given to-night at 8 o'clock promptly and all members of the department are requested to assemble at the City hall at that hour and go to the restaurant in a body.

The annual meeting of the W. S. Jackson Hose company for the election of officers was held in the company's room last night and the following were selected: Foreman, Matt. H. Wilbur; 1st assistant, Len Jackson; 2d assistant, W. H. D. Merrill; secretary and treasurer, J. F. Pearce. It was decided by a vote that the company would not turn out in the Memorial day parade from the fact that a number expected to be absent from the city and others could not turn out as the business houses would not be closed.

Mrs. Annie D. Clopper, says the Woman's Journal, is among the most extensive breeders of fine horses in the state of Colorado. She is said to superintend her farm with the knowledge and care that might be the envy of many men in like vocation. She holds regular sales once or twice a year, at which time she offers one hundred or more horses of grades from the ordinary to the best that can be had in the state. She is the only lady engaged in that business, so far as known, and she has been highly successful.

The fifth annual meeting of the American Forestry congress will take place in Denver in the month of September, probably from the 10th to the 15th. With this meeting the congress will for the first time move out of the sphere of the eastern wooded states over the treeless plains to their western border, and problems and condition, will be presented which have hitherto received but a passing place in the discussions of the congress. All persons expecting to attend the meeting should notify Bernard E. Fernow, secretary, at Washington, D. C.

Glen Park!

The project to establish a summer resort after the order of Ocean Grove, Martha's Vineyard and Chautauqua, within a mile south of Palmer Lake, is an assured success. Those should subscribe who want to see it made a success; because of the opportunity it will offer for the holding all kinds of religious assemblies at a most charming place, free from the adverse influences which obtain at most established towns. Those should subscribe who want to take advantage of the low rates at which the lots are now held. Those subscribing $50 will constitute the first class, and be entitled to five first-class lots in a group. Others will be entitled to one first-class lot for each $50 subscribed, while those subscribing $75 and $100 each will be entitled, respectively to a second or third-class lot. The money so put down will be conscientiously used in laying out streets, erecting the auditorium, hotel, rustic summer houses, and fountains, and in arranging walks, drives, water service, drainage, etc. The Supervisory Board consists of Fran Hart (Episcopal), Dr. De La Matyr (Methodist Episcopal), Dr. Cameron (Baptist), Dr. Reed (Congregationalist), Rev. We are now ready for business. We are not the oldest, but the youngest house in town, therefore our goods are the newest and freshest. We have the largest and most complete stock ever brought in this city. Our fancy goods are equal in quality and quantity to any house in the state. They consist of all the fine domestic and imported goods put up for the trade. We have come here to stay and for the purpose of building up a large wholesale and retail trade. Our former reputation in this city for selling goods cheap and on closer margins than anybody is we think all that it is necessary for us to say on that point. At least those who will call and examine our stock and get our prices will be convinced of the truth of what we say. Our clerks will be courteous and attentive and glad to show you through our stock whether you buy or not. We will guarantee prices, both wholesale and retail, equal to any given you by Denver houses. We are sole agents for the celebrated Pike Apple Brand of hams and breakfast bacon; the choicest put up in America.

COME! COME!!

And see the largest stock of furniture now arriving at the Parquder block. These goods were bought for cash before the advance of May 1st from the largest and best manufacturers in the United States and shipped by the car load at the lowest possible freight rate. I am handling exclusively new furniture and therefore am able to offer a larger and better variety than house handling several lines of goods.

In connection will be found a repair shop under the charge of Mr. Thos. Barber, who thoroughly understands his business, and customers can depend upon honest and first-class work.

I want the people of Colorado Springs to come and respect his new stock and get prices before purchasing elsewhere. I propose to handle good goods, meet all fair competition and do business honestly and hope to merit a fair share of your patronage.

Respectfully,

JOHN THORNTON.
